No one knows better how to build a great PP data architecture than the EU

What are we worried about?

How far is the vision?

Government purchases by regulation type

Country	EU directive	National law	Unregulated
Cyprus	28.8 %	70.1 %	1.1 %
Malta	36.2 %	62.6 %	1.2 %
Latvia	59.1 %	39.7 %	1.2 %
Portugal	12.4 %	84.3 %	3.3 %
Bulgaria	47.1 %	48.9 %	4.0 %

Will eForms save the day?

Good is not good enough when better is expected.

Lou Lamoriello

quotefancy

Why?

Two-tier implementation is not enough for big data generation for deployment of new technologies

Lack of strict mandate impede the scope of coverage

The format and publication methods not good enough for market intelligence

What are we excited about?

First, the Public Procurement Data Space

It can help the purpose-driven data publication, especially for policy target tracking (i.e. Single Market Scorecard redefined)

It can incentivize beyond eForms data sharing & publication

It can harmonize beyond mandatory data publication expectations

Second, the Open Data Directive (PP as High-Value Dataset)

It is a major opportunity for clarifying expectations of what's needed to collect and publish

It can offer strong wind to the sails of the PPDS

It can boost the levels of publication to power procurement data markets

Third, the uptake of Open Contracting Data Standard

Worldwide
